

HAMILTON CHARGES
POLITICAL SWAY IN RELIEF PRACTICE

Reads Letter to CCC Applicant
In Address To New England Group

MAKES PREDICTION

Chairman Says He Believes All
Six New England States
Will Go Republican

BOSTON, July 18—Making a slashing attack upon New Deal relief practices for playing politics with the "golden rule," Republican National Chairman John Hamilton wound up his tour of New England here last night.

Specifically, Hamilton presented the evidence to substantiate his charges to more than 1000 Republican Party officials and workers of Massachusetts at a rousing rally in Chamber of Commerce hall. He read a letter written by Governor Leslie A. Miller of Wyoming to show how applicants for positions in the CCC of that State were counseled to obtain the endorsement of their Democratic county committee and the Democratic State chairman.

Governor Miller's letter, which was presented by Hamilton in the form of a photostatic copy, gave the following advice to one young CCC aspirant as of March 14, 1935:

"Receipt is acknowledged of your letter in which you write regarding the application you have placed for a position as non-technical foreman in the CCC camp which will be established in Wyoming during the summer months.

"If you have not already done so I would like to suggest that you fill out the enclosed application blank, handling the same through the Natrona County Democratic Committee, and it will then be given consideration by Mr. Flannery, the State chairman, whenever he is called upon by Senator O'Mahoney or Congressman Greer to furnish recommendations for such appointments. These appointments are all under the jurisdiction of Federal officials in Washington, although they have been very desirous of co-operating with our Congressional delegation. With all good wishes, (signed) Leslie A. Miller, Governor."

Hamilton also produced a photostatic copy of the enclosure which he remarked was headed "Application for Political Appointment." Among the questions which the application blank contained Chairman Hamilton read these:

"How long have you been a registered Democrat? What service have you given to the Democratic Party? Did you contribute to the Democratic campaign fund?"

Below these was a section labelled "political endorsements" where the CCC candidate was evidently supposed to group the signatures of the Democratic county chairman or the Democratic State committeeman.

After reading the Governor of Wyoming's letter and the application blank, Hamilton stated: "If this were an isolated instance I would not cite it, but constant similar evidences of the influence of partisan aims in caring for the needy have come to light for many months. The law has two measures for the violation of human responsibilities: That for the individual acting in behalf of himself and that of the individual acting as a trustee for others.

"The citizens of New England and of America know that money appropriated by them through their Congressman for the sake of the needy is voted to the Executive as a trust as sacred as any that is drawn up between man and man. The shameful

SPORTS AND 'EATS'
BRING SCHOOL PROFIT

Doylestown Nets $128 From Sports and $235 From Cafeteria Operation

REDUCED FOOD PRICES

DOYLESTOWN, July 18—Both the sports ledger and the cafeteria accounts at the public schools here show profits for the season just passed. The sports of the school netted a gain of $128.05 while the cafeteria shows a profit of $235.

Five sports, football, basketball, baseball, hockey and track, enriched the athletic fund of Doylestown High School to the tune of $128.05, according to Hollis A. Lachet, faculty manager of athletics.

The total receipts for the five sports was $1548.22 and the expenditures amounted to $1420.17 leaving a balance of $128.05.

Football receipts this year totaled $722.53; expenses amounted to $599.98 leaving a gain of $122.55.

This gain would be handsomely larger, but it was the first time in the history of the annual Turkey Day game between Doylestown and Lansdale High that the receipts were divided on a fifty-fifty basis.

Prior to the game last November one of the schools would enjoy the proverbial fat year and the other school the traditionally uncomfortable lean year. Be it reported, it is as it should be now and henceforth.

The 1934-35 loss of $338 represents a lean year for the County Seaters. For the past season's pigskin frolics, there were $508.24 taken in as gate receipts and $226.60 represents the sale of season tickets.

The weather—remember when it was 29 below and you shuddered in three-foot deep blizzards—is responsible for the small margin of profit—$1.01—made from basketball last season.

The receipts amounted to $488.14 and the expenditures totaled $487.13, leaving a balance of one dollar and one cent.

Once there was a handful of spectators and the referees, who must be paid, were on hand for a game which had to be called off because the visiting team was snow bound.

But the mouse-in-the-cheese so far as basketball is concerned is the rental of $237 which must be paid for the use of the armory. Not having a gymnasium with adequate facilities.

RECORD SPENDING
By Representative Chester C. Bolton of Ohio

The four sessions of the Seventy-third and Seventy-fourth Congresses, representing, roughly speaking, the term of President Roosevelt, have appropriated in excess of $39,000,000, including appropriations through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Do you realize that if one dollar had been laid away every minute of every day and every night from the beginning of the year 1 to January 1, 1936, there would have been on the latter date $1,300,404,000?

In other words, just a little more than a billion dollars in 1,936 years at the rate of a dollar a minute. As a comparison, note that the present Administration is spending at the rate of $10,000 per minute.

Roger Babson, noted economist, has made the following comment:

"If every dollar spent were being matched by a dollar in tax revenues, I would not be alarmed. If this were so, the voters would soon take care of the spending problem."

The American people are showing signs of awakening to the situation, because they realize that this spending on the part of the New Deal means that every penny must be raised by taxation, whether by direct or indirect measures.

It is a well-known fact that the tax measure just passed is only another attempt to give the impression that this is the end of higher taxation.

On the contrary, present taxes levied are inadequate, and the next session will demonstrate the need for larger income by taxation, simply because the country cannot continue to live on borrowed money and at the same time maintain national credit; or, far better, the people will demand at the coming election a reduction in expenditures to bring the cost of the Federal Government within revenues.

CHILDREN'S HEALTH IS REPORTED IMPROVED

Reports at Morrisville Show
Number of Physical Defects
Have Been Improved

75% INNOCULATED

MORRISVILLE, July 18—An improved health condition in the Morrisville schools is indicated by the annual report on school medical inspection submitted by Dr. George A. Enlon, school medical director.

The report shows a number of physical defects to have existed, but compared with former years the number is lower. According to the figures, 75 per cent of the pupils in the schools were properly protected against diphtheria. The inoculation given to prevent this disease is an optional matter on the part of the parents.

Examination of 1,268 pupils revealed the following defects: Poor nutrition, 152 cases reported and all treated; defective vision, 121 cases reported and treated; total eye diseases, 41; defective hearing, 1; otitis media, 5; defective teeth, 487; tonsils, 236; nasal obstruction, 5; skin diseases, 43; orthopedic defects, 7; nervous diseases, 5; cardiac disease, 2; defective speech, 16; and enlarged thyroid, 1.

Pupils were excluded for the following diseases during the school year: chickenpox, mumps, tonsillitis, impetigo, ringworm, and pediculosis. The report also indicated that one pupil was vaccinated by the school physician.

Closing Exercises Held
By Yardley Bible School

YARDLEY, July 18—Before a well-crowded church of relatives and friends the Yardley Methodist Church closed its Daily Vacation Bible School with special exercises under direction of Miss Anna P. Wright.

A procession, followed by a salute to the Christian flag by the Sunday School, and a hymn, opened the exercises.

Sentence prayers were then given by members of the school. The beginners' department in charge of Mrs. Mary Hughes, the Misses Lillian VanArtsdalen, Louise Thompson, Ethel MacDonnell and Catherine Brewer, presented "Jesus Loves the Flowers," followed by response of Bible verses and "Bells of Prayer." The 23rd Psalm was repeated by six small girls, and the songs, "My Prayer," and "We're Glad Today," were then given.

The primary department under direction of Mrs. Jesse Bilbee, Miss Elizabeth Satterfield, and Miss Betty Cadwallader, dramatized "How the Flower-Me-Not Got Her Name" and "God's Flowers Save a Man's Life." "The Toad's Story" and "The Story of Esther and the Lily" followed.

The Rev. Francis C. Thomas called the honor roll of perfect attendance, and complimented the teachers on the work. The Juniors, in charge of Miss Helen Dunsbury, Mrs. Harry Magill, presented a puppet show, "Relating Our Findings of Our Community History." The Intermediates, under the direction of Mrs. Francis C. Thomas, Miss Margaret Worthington, presented a play, "Capturing Thelma's Interest."

Legion Postpones Selection
Of Boy to Go to Mt. Gretna

Selection of a boy by Robert W. Bracken Post, American Legion, to go to Mt. Gretna was postponed last night until Monday evening. The delay was due to the short notice given and which it was thought was not doing justice to those who might desire to file applications.

It was announced in the Courier yesterday that the selection would be made last evening. The committee met for the purpose but discovering that no previous notice had been given, decided to withhold action until Monday evening.

The young man named will go to Mt. Gretna for the first or second week in August. Applicants must be 15 to 20 years of age, sons of legionnaires, but said legionnaires do not necessarily have to be members of the Bracken Post.

At the Camp, the boys who will come from all sections of the State, will receive training in municipal government. They will elect their own officials and conduct the business of the camp.

Wedding, Accident and Hospital Bill Comes In One Day's Time

BRIDE SLIGHTLY HURT

DOYLESTOWN, July 18—A wedding, an automobile accident and a hospital bill happened all in one day to Jerome C. Hancock, 25, of 139 Randolph Place, Washington, D. C.

Hancock, a waiter, was married Thursday afternoon at four o'clock in Buffalo, N. Y. Eager to get back to Atlantic City where he was employed at a fashionable club, Hancock and his bride, Charlotte Hancock, 21, formerly of 726 Harvard street, Washington, started their honeymoon trip, an all-night automobile ride, headed for New Jersey.

About six o'clock yesterday morning, the bridegroom, tired from driving all night, fell asleep at the wheel of his car with the result that the machine crashed into a truck in charge of John J. Flounders, of 118 Center avenue, Willow Grove, Pa., who was parked along the Lackawanna Trail at Plumsteadville, six miles north of Doylestown.

Flounders, the truck driver, was asleep in his parked truck when the Hancock car, proceeding south on the Trail, crashed into the truck and put it out of commission.

The bride, Mrs. Hancock, was the only person injured. She received a deep laceration of the lip and suffered considerably from shock. She was taken to the Doylestown Emergency Hospital for treatment and will be discharged some time today.

In the meantime, Hancock was taken before Justice of the Peace W. Carlisle Hobensack where he was advised to settle with Flounders for the damage done to his truck.

"This is what I call a tough break—married last night, wrecked this morning and bills to pay at the hospital as well as damages to the truck," Hancock remarked as he started away from the Justice's office to see that his bride of a few hours was resting comfortably at the hospital, and to locate some money to pay his bills here.

Corporal William Engle, of the Doylestown sub-station of State Highway Patrol, investigated the accident.

'BANG AND GO BACK'
RACE SCHEDULED FOR SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Annual Event to Take Place in Delaware River, Off
Anchor Club Dock

EXPECT MANY ENTRIES

Activities Are Now In Full Swing at Yacht Club House

With 28 yachts and 8 outboards already in the water, the Anchor Yacht Club is rapidly completing plans for the annual "Bang and Go Back" race which will take place Sunday at 2.30 p. m. Contrary to the usual procedure, the "Rocking Chair Fleet" will have complete charge of the race from the starting gun to the time the competition ends.

The race, which is said to have been originated by the Bristol club, is open to all members of the organization. Commodore John Hibbs explained the procedure as follows: All boats line up in front of the judges' float, located in front of the Club House. At the sound of the gun all proceed to the buoy two and one-half miles downstream and start back for the second buoy which is about two and one-half miles upstream. Then, when the first boat makes the trip and reaches the starting point, a second gun is fired by the judges and immediately every boat reverses its course and proceeds to race for the starting point. The boat which touched the starting point first must also reverse its direction and attempt to overtake all other boats, thus this boat, because of its speed, automatically handicaps itself.

Some of the members of the Club are at present away on cruises. "Bud" Brunner was expected to place in the race this Sunday, but it is not known whether he will return from Cape May in time for the event to enter his 40-foot schooner, Paul Townsend is visiting Tuckerton at present.

All the boats were overhauled and painted before they were launched this season and several new ones have been put in the water. Dr. William L. Noe, Langhorne, launched his new Corson sloop. The boat, which is Marconi rigged, is 17 feet overall and has a beam of six feet, eight inches. The boat, which was launched on Thursday, is trimmed in mahogany and brass hardware. Members viewing the new sailboat were heard to say that it looked as if it could attain plenty of speed.

William Fleming also recently launched his new 40-foot cruiser which he built in Wycombe and brought down to Bristol on a trailer.

Several new boat-owner members have been admitted to the Club: Leslie Craven, Jr., Bristol, owner of the "Z Mark;" James Batten, Jr., Philadelphia.

The lawn fete is to be entirely different this year from those of previous years. There is to be a large dance floor with an orchestra and numerous other attractions, which will delight all who attend.

EYE TO EYE, CROSSED

Why is it so difficult for two persons who witness, say, an accident to agree as to the exact details? It is easier to ask the question than to answer it. But the inevitable discrepancy is known to every reporter, to every policeman, to every judge on the bench, to every lawyer who appears before it, in short to everyone of experience in investigating the every-day happenings in this world of ours.

An interesting test of this human failure to observe with exactitude was made in a classroom of the University of Minnesota recently. Prof. Baker's lecture was interrupted by Prof. Longstaff, who said, "Mr. Professor, here is a telegram for you." The interrupter wore a brown overcoat and a baseball player's red cap. He carried a blue slip of paper which he forced into the lecturer's hand. The incident covered a period of fifteen seconds. Then came the test of observation on the part of the class.

Virtually all of the class said Professor Longstaff wore a brown coat. Forty-five said he had on a baseball cap; ten said just "cap," and 30 said a red cap. Several, however, said he wore a hat, two said he had nothing on his head, and others described the headpiece as a skull cap, stocking cap or tam. Estimates on time varied widely from the exact time to two minutes. Most of the class said the message was on blue paper, but 28 said it was yellow, and nine said it was white.

Although neither person struck a blow, 62 students said the messenger struck the lecturer, and 119 said the lecturer struck the messenger. Only eighteen said no blow was struck.

Professor Longstaff, the messenger, had previously lectured before the class for six hours and conducted two quizzes. Yet 58 were unable to identify him, and six gave wrong identifications. Only 70 of the 216 said the messenger addressed Professor Baker as "Mr. Professor." Eighty-four asserted he said "professor." Others said the messenger called him "Professor Baker," "Mr. Baker," "Mr. Teacher," "Hey, mister," "Teacher," and other variations.

Perhaps this does not mean anything of importance and perhaps it does. At least it suggests that when you get into a discussion with another eye-witness of an unexpected occurrence, the chances are you are both wrong.

violations of such a relationship, which constantly appear under the present Administration, will not go unnoticed. I speak for the American people in expressing my scorn now. They will speak for themselves in November."

As to the November ballot-speaking, Chairman Hamilton declared today that his conferences of the past four days had convinced him that all six New England States would register a clean sweep for Landon and Knox. He added that New York State would be carried by the Republicans by from 350,000 to 500,000 votes.

At noon, Hamilton was the guest at a luncheon offered to 150 Massachusetts editors by George F. Booth, publisher of the Worcester Telegram-Gazette, and he informed the newspapermen that "this year's Presidential election is going to be one of two things. Either a Hughes-Wilson election, where we won't know the result for several days or else it's going to be a Landon landslide. It's not going to be a landslide for Roosevelt."

At a press conference earlier, Hamilton was asked about his meeting in Springfield with former Governor Joseph B. Ely yesterday and he confirmed Ely's willingness to take the stump for Governor Landon, when he replied, "I want to avail myself of Governor Ely's services in all possible ways, and if that means it will be necessary to invite him to make speeches I will do so. I have an idea we will not have to wait to invite him."

Sports and "Eats" Bring School Profit

It's the story of the athletes paying until it hurts.

Gate receipts totaled $360.15 and season tickets sold amounted to $42.50. Gratifying is the loss of $47.25 on baseball compared to the losses of anywhere from $150 to $200 by other Bucks county high schools in the same sport. So outstanding was Bristol High's loss that it is to be abandoned.

Expenditures were $221.58 and receipts amounted to $174.33, piling up a loss of $47.25. Gate receipts totaled $55.90 and season tickets netted $27.85.

A movie benefit, which realized $67.88, saved the day for the girls' hockey season. Receipts amounted to $114.23 and expenses were $88.17, leaving a gain of $26.06.

Track entailed a loss of $22.30. Dr. George R. Cressman, supervising principal, announced that the cafeteria for the 1935-36 term realized a total net profit from operation of $235.39.

It has been a matter of policy since the home economics department has been functioning in the local school system in connection with the cafeteria to reduce prices of the food sold daily to the students and teachers whenever the differences between the operating expenses and income were justified.

"Several reductions in food," said Dr. Cressman, "were made this year, and if it is possible to make further reductions on various other articles the policy will be carried out next fall."

A further policy of Miss Ella D. Dewees, home economics teacher, and her corps, is to keep the standard at such a point of service that it will attract students and be consistent with the high standards of nutrition and health.

The sum of $4517.28 was realized from sales made in the cafeteria last year. The cost of the merchandise sold amounted to $3467.77.

The gross profit in sales is listed at $1049.51, from which deductions for operating expenses, salaries, depreciation, gas and electric service and other minor incidentals must be made.

Pa. To Retain Republican Standing

Philadelphia, July 18.—Pennsylvania will retain its traditional Republican standing next November by giving Governor Alfred M. Landon a rousing majority, John D. M. Hamilton, national chairman of the Republican party predicted here today.

Delayed in this city for two hours, while his private car was switched to a westbound express, Hamilton said: "I am confident about the outcome in Pennsylvania, but I want to talk over matters with Republican leaders."

Hamilton will formally open the GOP campaign in Pennsylvania by delivering two addresses at Hershey, near Harrisburg, today to state and county Republican leaders.

Hamilton declared: "Governor Landon will not only carry the six New England states, but he will win them by the largest Republican majority the party has polled for years."

Meet To Launch Landon Campaign

Hershey, July 18.—Republican leaders from every corner of the state gathered here today to meet with John D. M. Hamilton, national Republican chairman, and to launch formally the presidential campaign in Pennsylvania for Governor Landon of Kansas.

Members of the State Committee, State Executive Committee, Congressional nominees, delegates and alternates to the national convention, county chairmen and vice-chairmen—a total of six hundred—will attend the meeting. They will meet with the GOP national chairman at 4:00 this afternoon in executive session, to map out campaign plans to keep Pennsylvania in the GOP column in the November election.

Tonight, following a dinner, Hamilton will address the group and speak to a radio audience at the same time. He is expected to strike the keynote of the GOP campaign in Pennsylvania. The broadcast is scheduled for 8:30, eastern standard time.

Congressman Clare Ferenty, of Philadelphia, also will speak at the dinner, at which State Chairman M. Harvey Taylor will preside.

Today, too, Hamilton was expected to give his long-awaited answer to whether Governor Landon will come to West Middlesex, Mercer County, where he was born, to personally launch his campaign in the State.

The Republican chieftain is expected here early this afternoon from Boston, where he spoke last night concluding a tour of the New England States, where he was conferring with local leaders.

53 TAXES ON LOAF OF BREAD; BAKERS TO ADVERTISE THEM

Won't Bear Burden of Federal Spending in Silence

BUTCHERS FOLLOW LEAD

CHICAGO, Ill., July 18.—Found! The genius who can get 53 slices from a loaf of bread. He's no Houdini, either. He's just the tax collector, and he takes his cuts before you ever see the loaf you buy.

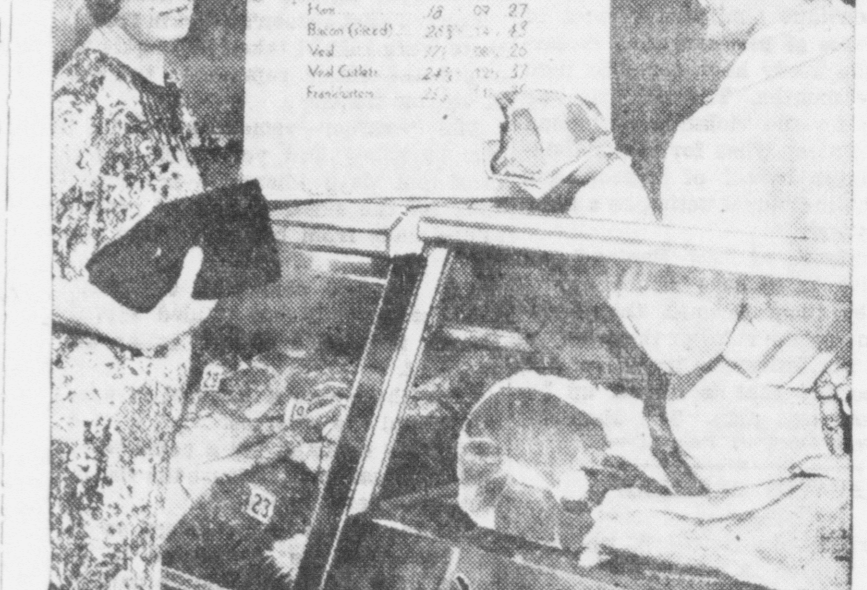

Believing that it is high time the housewife and her spouse who pays the bills were acquainted with the steadily growing toll of hidden—or indirect—taxes, the Conference of National Bakery Executives, meeting here, has decided to place on bread wrappers the exact amount of the total cost which represents the 53 concealed exises carried on every loaf of bread. In most cases this amounts to 20 per cent, the bakers say.

Despite the claims that taxes on wealthy incomes would pay the larger share of the cost of the unprecedented spending of the Roosevelt administration, here is what President Roosevelt himself said, September 2, 1935, in a letter to Roy W. Howard:

"What is known as consumers' taxes, namely the invisible taxes paid by people in every walk of life, fall relatively much more heavily upon the poor man than on the rich man. In 1929, consumers' taxes represented only 30 per cent of the national revenue. Today they are 60 per cent. . . ."

Such taxes are often said to be "painless," because the consumer usually is unaware that he is paying them, but the nation's foremost bakers have decided to make them known, for they are increasing in such volume that they are depriving the people of their bread."

Accordingly, the new wrappers, which show the price of the loaf and carry a table detailing the amount of the price that goes for taxes, were scheduled to make their appearance throughout the nation about the last week in July.

Butchers, Too, Reveal Taxes

Purveyors of other foods have taken the hint of the bakers. For instance, a typical butcher shop in the Chicago "loop" district displays a card which warns, in large bold type, "DON'T BLAME YOUR BUTCHER. Meat is Low—Taxes Are High!" There follows a table which shows just how high the hidden, "painless" taxes are. It does not include the local sales tax:

Item	Price	Taxes Total
Lamb Chops	35 1/3	17 2/3 .53
Leg Lamb	22	.11 .33
Pork Roast	20	.10 .30
Pork Chops	21 1/3	10 2/3 .35
Stirloin	30	.15 .45
Porterhouse	30	.15 .45
Rib Roast	21 1/3	10 2/3 .32
Hamburger	.10	.05 .15
Ham	.18	.09 .27
Bacon, sliced	28 2/3	14 1/3 .43
Veal	17 1/3	8 2/3 .26
Veal Cutlets	24 2/3	12 1/3 .37
Frankfurters	23 1/3	11 2/3 .35

Where there are only 53 taxes concealed in a loaf of bread, there are 123 hidden in a cut of meat today. If you buy a dollar shirt, 25 cents of the price goes for taxes. One-sixth of the light bill represents taxes; telephones pay a tax of nearly $7 a year. Taxes take more than one-fourth of the worker's income. If you faint from the shock of these revelations, whatever the corner drug store sells to revive you may bear the burden of 378 taxes. And if you pass out completely, there will be 158 taxes hidden in the cost of your funeral.

Federal Tax Increases

"The baking industry is sick and tired of holding the 'little brown bag' for the tax collectors," said W. E. Long, head of the Long Foundation of Food Research and sponsor of the new tax-revealing movement among the bakers. "Every time the price of bread goes up or down the baker is criticized. The truth of the matter, and the public should know it, is that in recent months the price fluctuation is due to a constantly increasing federal tax saddled upon the industry."

During the floor discussion at the bakers' meeting, Earl Schuetz, of Sacramento, Calif., declared: "the public hasn't seen anything yet." He added: "If the present tax program continues, the average family will be faced with a tax on a 15-cent loaf of bread that equals the tax on a 15-cent package of cigarettes."

"KING OF HEARTS"

BY EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

CHAPTER XXII

The little time that remained on that last morning, after a late breakfast, Lynn devoted to packing. Dot insisted upon helping her, but she did not seem to know how to do anything. Her efforts were impulsive and ineffectual. At the last moment, she presented Lynn with a complete set of ivory satin lingerie and an ounce of imported French perfume. When Lynn protested her extravagance, she dismissed the gifts as of no consequence. Her generosity was fostered by abundance and indulgence, and not by a spirit of loving sacrifice. She gave from her lavish provision and knew nothing of intrinsic values. Much as she treasured the luxuries, Lynn was reluctant to accept what would have represented so much effort to her.

Zola and the Colonel had added their persuasion that Lynn should remain with them. But she was determined to return north. Added to being their responsibility, she feared now for the chaos her affection for Jack might precipitate into their orderly design for living. She knew that if they suspected the truth for a moment, they would speed her departure with all haste. They would tolerate no smallest element which threatened Dot's happiness, she was sure. But she compromised with a promise to consider returning at some future time.

Dewey came speeding out to the house in the early afternoon, protesting, "I just heard you were leaving. Of course, I didn't believe it, but I came out to see what you had planned," he lowered his voice with guarded significance. "We'll go anywhere you say, sweet. If you want your relatives to believe you're going back north—I'll meet you anywhere you say."

She gave him a look that was intended to wither or freeze, depending upon his vulnerability. "I don't wish to meet you anywhere, Mr. Condon. I have only been civil to you for Dot's sake, and I'm going back north to take care of myself, where my acquaintance doesn't include men like you."

"Oh, I say, aren't you being a little cruel?"

"Not nearly so cruel as I should be. You need some man to deal with you, or some woman who is as ruthless as you are—not the innocent girls you select for your victims."

"Innocent girls!" he sneered derisively.

"Oh, I don't expect you to believe that any of us are innocent. Your pattern fits everyone, in your own mind. Goodbye—Mr. Condon. It has been something of a revelation to know you, and the experience may be useful to me in the future." She stood up to dismiss him.

He retreated with a little less than his usual grace, but his manner still insisted that he needed her. As she stood at the open door and watched his glittering car disappear down the drive, she thought how very far apart were those two extremes of her revelation of men in one short week of time. She felt wiser by ages of time and depths of experience, since the trying when she had first entered that door. The golden serenity of the day, the mystery of the drooping oaks, the sheen of the magnolia trees were the same. But she was not the same. She had experienced the depth of love and the revulsion of that substitute which was almost as old as love, and quite as universal.

And she had renounced them both. The same group which had feted her all week, with one exception, was at the station to speed Lynn's departure. She was amazed and delighted to find her drawing-room—the Colonel had insisted upon that—filled with farewell gifts of books and flowers and confections. It was a happy climax for her holiday. The girls were demonstrative and the boys attentive. Everyone promised to see her in Chicago soon, whether or not they had any idea of visiting in the north. She accepted the promises in the same spirit they were made, like all such assurances of the future.

And the next thing Lynn knew, the little group on the platform was receding into the distance and the train was speeding toward the north. The happiest week of her life was ended and she did not know whether to mourn or rejoice. The fulgence of its shining memory was going to light the future for her, but ah! the contrast it would suffer from the experience.

Could she return to the monotone pattern of the two-tone texture she had been weaving alone, after going upon the rich and intricate designs of variegated color? It would take plenty of courage and determination, she knew. More than she possessed? Lynn wondered.

To distract her thoughts, she turned to inspect the assortment of gifts. . . half a dozen new books and as many of the week's periodicals. She would have a whole day in which to enjoy them, tomorrow. The flowers would be withered by the time she arrived home, but the confections would be a treat for her and Mrs. Kime over many days. She would give Susanne a box of candy and fruit, also.

She began to anticipate seeing Susanne and telling her all about the joyous holiday. Perhaps not quite all—but describing what she had seen for the benefit of Susanne's vivid imagination. She was grateful that she could count on seeing Susanne, Lynn reflected a trifle wistfully, recalling Dot's host of friends.

And then, as always, her thoughts reverted to Jack, and she remembered his farewell. He had been gay enough with the rest of them, and no one had noticed his sudden gravity when he took Lynn's hand and kissed her suddenly and firmly on the mouth. It was over so quickly that she hadn't time even to think about it until afterward, and the incident had no significance for anyone except Lynn—and Jack himself, perhaps. She wondered if it had, or if his family duty had prompted the gesture of affection. The torment of uncertainty was too painful, so she tried to dismiss the conjecture.

Of one thing she was certain, however: that some part of her—some vital element—had been left behind her in the south. Her love remained with Jack, whether or not he desired it. And whether he knew it or not, Jack had changed her view perspective on life and given a new meaning to its fundamentals. She never would be the same again, she never would experience the revelation of love as it might have been. But it was gone now. It had appeared, an elusive vision, and vanished again like a phantom ship of the night. She had glimpsed the ultimate. A glimpse was better than never seeing at all, being blind forever. It gave her something to dream about.

The train roared north, as if protesting its transition from the soft, golden atmosphere into the damp gray chill which shrouded it completely on the second night. The cars creaked and shuddered, and icicles dripped mournfully from window ledges. And there was not that pleasant animation of expectancy aboard the train which had been so obvious on the trip south. There were few passengers because most of the carnival guests had returned several days earlier. But Lynn enjoyed the privacy of her drawing-room, reflecting that it was probably the last as well as the first in her experience. The entire week had been so crowded with novel experiences for her—most of them delightful ones. Its short span bridged a deep chasm between her past and her future, but she had yet to discover its astonishing depth.

Lynn walked through the maze of hurrying humanity in the terminal. It seemed queer to see everyone rushing so frantically about, with such grim expressions on their faces. Many of them were running, as if each moment must suffice for two. It seemed so very long since she had been a part of this haste and anxiety. But she was grateful now to grasp at something definite which would absorb her thoughts. She glanced at the station clock, and quickened her own pace involuntarily, overtaking the redcap who had carried her bags from the train.

"A taxi," she nodded, as his gesture inquired.

If the driver made good time, she would be at Dunning's at the usual hour. She gave him her destination and inquired anxiously, "Can you make it in ten minutes?"

He nodded and slammed the door to with screeching brakes and sudden stops, which almost precipitated Lynn from the tannu into the front seat, he deposited her at the main entrance of the department store at the specified time. Lynn hurried to the checkroom and left her bags before she went up to the ladies' apparel shop on the fifth floor. Seeing no one about, she went into the locker room, where she found Susanne absorbed with her makeup.

Her face lighted with pleasure when she saw Lynn, and she threw her arms around her with an ardent embrace. "Well, if it ain't the beautiful lady, here back here among us. Geef! I'm that glad to see you! I was afraid maybe you wouldn't come back."

"Why not?" Lynn laughed. It was the first nice and unprecipitated welcome home, even by Susanne.

"Did you have a swell time?"

"Marvelous!"

"You look it. Why, you're t

BRISTOL A. A. RALLIES IN FIFTH; WINS 8 TO 6

Exhibiting hitting power that resulted in six extra base blows, the Bristol A. A. tossers rallied to the fifth inning to hand a reverse to the Holmesburg team, 8-6, last evening, on Leedom's field.

Of the extra base knocks, DiTanna had a double, Masilla, triple; Stromp, triple; Breslin and VanZant doubles, and Zeffries a home run. Masilla's triple was the winning base sock of the tilt. Zeffries' four-bagger came with the bases bare at the start of the third canto.

The visitors also had their extra base caps on. In the first stanza, four batters received doubles to account for three runs. In the third, Howell hit a tremendous drive into the canal for a home run. Howell also had doubles in the first and seventh to lead the batters of the game.

Ralph Stromp was the winning pitcher while the defeat went to Anderson who was shelled from the peak in the fifth and relieved by Henry who finished.

PROMISE PLENTY OF ACTION AT BOXING SHOW

Plenty of action is promised to the boxing fans of this section Monday night at the bi-monthly boxing show held by the St. Ann's Athletic Association in its arena, Wood and Franklin streets. Seven of the bouts scheduled have already met with the approval of the A. A. U. officials.

Last night, Tally Sciarra was matched with Danny Murray, hard-hitting southpaw of the Arena club. Sciarra is in fine shape and proved this by his wonderful showing against William Forscum at Palmyra last week. Sciarra easily beat Forscum who earlier in the year had fought a bang-up fight with Jimmy Tygh.

Sammy Baiocchi will try for a victory against Dick Abbott, Arena. Abbott is out to kazo the Bristolian but Baiocchi is out to redeem himself after his miserable showing against Vernon Woodland in the last show. Other bouts that have been okayed are the Harry Graber-George Jones wind-up; Puccio-Spino, Davis-Williams, Leighton-Deka, Vince Della-Daniels, Dever-Lyons.

There is a possibility that the St. Ann's team may introduce a new boy to the fans that night. He is Rudy Kemp, Riverside youth who has been working out with the St. Ann's team. Kemp may be matched with Alexander Harvey, Seymour.

MACKENZIE ON HOSPITAL COT EAGER FOR A RACE

A discouraging spot for a birthday party and celebration is a hospital, but George (Doc) Mackenzie, Eddington whizz on the race track, sniled on his thirtieth birthday last Wednesday and looks forward to the next one with delight. And this in spite of the fact that "Doc" is spread on a cot in a hospital in Reading as a result of his crack-up last Sunday which resulted in a fractured vertebra, concussion of the brain, burns and a broken hand.

Mackenzie, one of the most popular speedsters who ever handled a car on the track, was a badly shaken and worn-out pilot when he was hauled from the Reading track last Sunday. The ambulance that carried him away also took Floyd Roberts, a victim in the same mishap, to the hospital. And Roberts also had a fractured vertebra, intensified by a broken leg and burns. Because there were no private rooms available the injured drivers were placed on adjoining cots in one of the wards after first aid treatment had been rendered.

Tuesday a private room was vacated

Nazi Swim Star in Action

Our swimming lassies will not have everything their own way in the Berlin Olympic tests if Martha Gensger of Germany has her way. She is pictured here churning through the water in a practice swim at Berlin in the style which brought her the record for the 200-meter breast stroke.

and Mackenzie's family ordered him immediately removed to it, but "Doc" objected:

"Sure, move me in—that is, if the room is large enough for Floyd too. Tomorrow is my birthday and I want at least one regular fellow with me. We will celebrate the occasion."

And so another cot was crowded into the new room and the two drivers, both having narrowly escaped death on the Reading speedway, spent "Doc's" birthday reading letters, postcards, and telegrams of congratulation. And it is said that an extra mail man was hired to carry the volume of mail that came to the veteran drivers.

Shirt Stains May Give Murder Clue

Asheville, N. C., July 18—Stains of a reddish hue found on a shirt owned by Joseph Urey, 27-year-old negro bellboy held as a suspect in the brutal murder of pretty 19-year-old Helen Clevenger in her hotel room here, may hold the key to the mysterious slaying of the pretty co-ed, police believed today, as they resumed their grilling of the negro. It was revealed that a red-stained shirt had been found in Urey's home and police are expecting a chemical analysis of the stains to be completed today.

Urey was arrested last night, only a few hours after a coroner's jury read the verdict in the case, declaring the New York University honor student had come to her death at the hands of a party unknown. The negro had come off duty at the Battery Park Hotel, where Miss Clevenger was staying, only about an hour before police believed the victim was shot, as she knelt on the floor of her room.
